A dispatch announces that a Chicago man lost his wife in New York the other day. It would be a measly sort of married man who would enclose a stamp to him to find out how he succeeded in doing it.

It is now stated that Brodie L. Duke, who took a wife only a few months ago, has entirely forgotten that he was married. It takes time to forget a thing like that but Brodie may be coming to his senses.

Things seem to be really quieting down in Colorado since the Democratic governor was sworn in. Too much politics, demagoguery and charlatanry has nearly ruined that State and it needed a sensible Democrat like Adams to straighten out things.

The receiver of Mrs. Chadwick's estate says it amounts to about $100,000 as now scheduled. When Mrs. Chadwick sees the receiver and the lawyers take that and bring in bills for more pay, she will think "there are others."

FAVOR A COMPROMISE

NOTHING RADICAL WANTED.

Opposed to Abolition of Bar Service, But Would Do Away With River Law and Reduce the Fees—Special Meeting Held Yesterday.

At a special called meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Navigation and Pilotage held yesterday at noon at the office of Messrs. Willard & Giles, on Princess street, the question of the abolition of compulsory pilotage was very generally discussed as the result of which there was a crystalization of sentiment upon a resolution offered by Mr. C. W. Worth, amounting to a compromise between the extremes on both sides of the question. All members of the Board were present, viz: Mr. James Sprunt, chairman; Messrs. C. W. Worth, Samuel Northrop, M. S. Willard, A. S. Heide, J. W. Craig, S. F. Craig. There were also present Mr. James Kyle, clerk of the Board, and Captain Edgar D. Williams, harbor master of the port.

Mr. Sprunt, the chairman, said that the meeting had been called at the request of several merchants and shippers who desired an expression of the views of members of the Board upon the subject of the contention between the Pilots' Association and the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Sprunt said that personally he was not in favor of the abolition of compulsory pilotage, but he, as a shipper and as a member of the Board, was strongly impressed by the growing necessity of remedial legislation with reference to certain irregularities which indicated an incomplete and unsatisfactory service. In order to prevent an indefinite discussion he had requested several members to prepare written expressions of their views, which might be accepted, modified or rejected by the Board.

Mr. Worth presented a series of resolutions which he said embodied the opinions of several members of the Board, and which he hoped might be acceptable as a compromise between the extremes proposed by interested parties at previous discussions outside of this Board. After a discussion of nearly an hour and a half the following was adopted, the Chairman and Commissioners J. W. Craig and S. F. Craig dissenting to the first and sixth paragraphs:

WHEREAS; This Board of Commissioners of Navigation and Pilotage of the port of Wilmington, has been requested by certain merchants and others interested and engaged in the carrying trade and commerce of this port, to convey to our representatives in the General Assembly at Raleigh an expression of our view of the Cape Fear Pilotage question, now under discussion, it is hereby

Resolved, First, That we are opposed at the present time to the abolishment of compulsory bar pilotage, but favor the abolishment of compulsory river pilotage on both coastwise and foreign vessels.

Second. We ask for authority to license only such persons as pilots who may be found by this Board competent and necessary for the commerce of the port.

Third. That we disapprove the present incomplete and unsatisfactory service of bar pilots who wait ashore until incoming vessels reach the bar before approaching such vessels, and we ask for power to enforce proper stations and cruising grounds under forfeiture of bar pilotage in case of default.

Fourth. That we disapprove of the present combination of Pilotage and Towage systems so far as in the finding of this Board the combined service tends to prejudice the interests of Wilmington commerce.

Fifth. That in view of the yearly increasing competition of Norfolk on the North and of Savannah on the South, in which our port is at a disadvantage, we recommend a reduction of present rates of pilotage to those in effect at Savannah.

Sixth. That we favor the retention of that feature of the existing law permitting masters of vessels to take out a license, and suggest that the fee for the annual renewal of such license be fixed for each year by this board at such figure as will raise the revenue required to maintain a satisfactory service (but at an amount not to exceed 25 cents or be less than 10 cents per ton.

After the adoption of the resolution the meeting at once adjourned.

A. Bissenger. The sale was negotiated by J. G. Wright & Son.

A. C. L. AGENT ARRESTED.

Mr. Bradbury Williams, of New York, inspector for the American Surety Co., arrived in the city last night from Dunn, N. C., where on Wednesday he caused the arrest of John L. Southall, former agent of the A. C. L. in that city. Mr. Southall was some time ago indicted by the Harnett county grand jury for the alleged embezzlement of $1,200 from the Coast Line and papers were issued for his arrest, but there was some difficulty in serving them until Mr. Williams came down to urge the matter for his company in which Southall was bonded to the Coast Line. Southall was arrested Wednesday at Dunn on a capias from the clerk of Harnett county court at Lillington. He at once gave bond for his trial which will take place Feb. 6th. The Coast Line shortage was, of course, paid by the surety company.

Mr. T. J. Sweeney, traveling auditor of the Coast Line, with a representative of the surety company checked Mr. Southall up $1,200 short some time ago. The former agent is well connected in Harnett and his arrest caused a sensation there. He says the $1200 alleged to have been embezzled by him was not taken but that the amount is due to him by merchants of Dunn for freight, which would have been paid to him but for the failure of the local banks in that town last Summer.

ENDORSED IN CHARLESTON.

Murray People Gave Great Satisfaction in Palmetto City—Here Next Week.

The Murray Comedy Company will hold the boards at the Academy all next week, opening Monday night in a splendid presentation of Hall Caine's "The Bondman." The company has played two engagements in Charleston, S. C., the present season, and the Evening Post of that city paid it the following compliment on the afternoon of Dec. 30:

"Under the personal direction of Manager J. Rus Smith, the Murray Comedy Company continues to play to good business at the Academy of of Music. The performance last evening again attracted a large and entirely pleased audience, which frequently interrupted the action with loud and prolonged applause. The bright vaudeville specialities were especially delightful and those who had turns won the favor of the house. Miss Dorothy Smith, with her charming methods, again scored a large hit, and Wilson R. Todd received his full share of plaudits. The company winds up its engagement of a week to-morrow evening and will give strong drama this evening and to-morrow, matinee and evening, all of which should be given generous patronage, for it is the best repertoire organization which has played locally this season, and has given entire satisfaction to all who have sat, seen and heard."

SEMINOLE AT SAVANNAH.

Yesterday's Savannah News has the following of interest here:

The revenue cutter Seminole, Capt. Foley, arrived in port yesterday and will remain during to-day. The officers of the cruiser are boarding all vessels for the purpose of seeing if their equipment is up to the requirement, if they have the required number of officers and crew and if the steamboat laws are complied with to the letter.

The practice of boarding vessels is in the line of duty of the revenue cutter officers, but in the last few months it has been more thorough than before, and the requirements of the navigation laws are being strictly enforced. All vessels lacking in equipment or in which the navigation laws are being violated, are reported to the collectors of customs, by which the penalties are enforced.

The Seminole is one of the new and large vessels in the revenue cutter service. Her cruising ground includes the North and South Carolina coasts to Savannah in the winter months and as far south as Jacksonville in the Summer.

Equipment of Florida Special.

The passenger department of the Atlantic Coast Line has just issued a folder devoted to the New York and Florida Special, descriptive of the train and illustrated with Florida scenes. There is given a colored diagram of each car, showing arrangement of drawing room compartment sections, interior of dining car and other data. The cover is beautifully engraved. One of the novel features of the Special is the electric lighting of the berths and compartments. The lights are in sockets and are produced and lighted by the pressure of a button. The rear car of the train is now an eight state-room observation car.

On pleasant days there is no better place to spend an hour or two than the beach. The 10 o'clock car lays over in the beach an hour and three quarters. The 3 o'clock car lays over an hour and one quarter.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S REPORT.

Several Important Recommendations to Legislature—More Funds Needed.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 12.—The report of the Adjutant General of the State Guard was filed yesterday, a little late on account of the illness of Inspector General Bain. The report shows an increase of 24 in the membership of the Guard during the year, the total now being 2,115 men of all grades. Companies at Hertford, Reidsville and Warrenton were disbanded for failure to follow regulations during the year, but the two last named were reorganized and subsequently admitted with the "Hickory Rifles," a new company. The entire Guard has been uniformed with khaki.

The report sets forth that of the million dollars appropriated by the National government to the Guard, North Carolina receives $35,000, and that the next Congress will very likely increase that amount. The State should contribute dollar for dollar with the United States. Compensation for captains of companies is recommended. The report concludes with the following recommendations:

1. That the appropriation by the State be increased to $35,000 annually. The State can well afford this amount and the investment will be a good one.

2. That each company be paid the sum of $100 annually, upon approval of the Inspector General.

3. That there be erected a suitable building for use as an arsenal, for officers for this department, and for such purposes as may be required by the State.

SUICIDE IN PENDER.

This week's Pender Chronicle, of Burgaw, has the following:

Mr. Ashley Murray, who lives about three miles from this place, in Murray Town, committed suicide last Sunday by cutting his throat from ear to ear with a razor. He was about 45 years of age, a prosperous farmer and a consistent member of the Hopewell Presbyterian church. His daughter was attending him at the time. He asked her to bring him some water and as soon as she left the room he secured the razor and, from the blood stains, must have at once committed the act. Despondency on account of ill health is supposed to have been the cause. His remains were interred at the family burying ground Monday evening at 3 o'clock. A wife and seven children survive him, who have our sincerest sympathy.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 18.

THE JAMESTOWN CELEBRATION

We are sure that North Carolina can but wish General Fitzhugh Lee success in getting a large appropriation for the exposition or celebration, whatever may be its nature, to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the settlement of Jamestown, the first permanent settlement of the English in America. The celebration is to take place next year, and no doubt our Virginia friends will see to it that some big diversion is to be arranged for so important an event. If it is to be an industrial exposition, which we had hoped for, it would have afforded North Carolina splendid opportunity to make the industrial exhibit of her life, but if it is to be a grand military, naval and merchant marine celebration, of course, North Carolina will be there to see it. The Washington Post, which we are glad to see is friendly to the Jamestown project, says:

It may not be generally understood that Gen. Fitzhugh Lee and his coadjutors in the Jamestown Exposition enterprise propose to celebrate the anniversary of the first English landing, not at Jamestown itself, but on the point just across the bay from Fort Monroe.

This locality has been chosen because of its manifold advantages for the purpose—advantages of climate, scenery, accessibility by land and water, and peculiar adaptation to the spectacular displays which are to constitute the chief attractions. The projected exposition, in fact, will be a seaside resort for the time being, and one of the most delightful on the whole Atlantic coast. It will have all the charms of salt water and ocean breezes possessed by Newport or Bar Harbor, fronting on one side a magnificent roadstead and facing the sea on the other. Hitherto, our great expositions have been held in inland cities, where visitors have suffered from hot weather during the Summer months and from the countless inconveniencies of transportation to and from the grounds. In this case, the hotels will be immediately upon the grounds themselves and at the same time upon the seashore. There will be no question of street cars or other conveyances, crowded, uncomfortable, and covering long distances. The visitors will be located at one of the most luxurious of ocean resorts, and also in close proximity to the chief object of their journey. They will have their choice of hotels suited to every purse, and they will be in a region famed for its markets, especially in respect of sea foods.

We understand that the idea of a military and naval celebration has been warmly welcomed both in this country and in England. Especially has the international feature appealed to Americans and Englishmen alike. This is natural enough, after all, for it was an English colony that landed at Jameston, and English pluck and brains and stamina redeemed this continent from the savage wilderness. As we have already insisted, the two nations have equal cause of pride and interest. One sowed the seed, the other now enjoys the harvest. We are of the same blood, the same original stock, and south of the Potomac the customs, ideals and traditions of the old country are as much in evidence today as they are in the land of their actual origin. If we rejoice and glory in the magnificent republic of the New World, England none the less furnished the material for its structure and exported to these shores the spirit, the character and the virtues which made its constitution and its perpetuity possible. We feel sure that, as our cousins on the other side become familiar with the facts and their significance, the idea of an international demonstration will grow in favor with thoughtful and patriotic men.

At all events, this will be the first seaside exposition of any consequence in our history, and thousands will go there for the salt water, the ocean breezes and the martial pageantry, if for nothing else.

THE PRESIDENT AND HIS PARTY APART.

The news from Washington indicates that President Roosevelt is very much in earnest about tariff revision and regulation of interstate freight rates. He continues to hold conferences with the Senate and House leaders, but what the outcome will be is hard to say. It is given out, however, that the President will insist upon enlarging the powers of the Inter State Commerce Commission, which he regards as a moral obligation on his part, but as to revision he will declare plainly the necessity and wisdom of pruning the Dingley schedules and leave it to Congress to settle as the representatives of the people.

President Roosevelt is right in deferring to the people's representatives the question of the tariff, upon which they were elected as standpatters and for which they are alone responsible to those people who elected them. The President will clear his skirts, however, and if the Republicans make a mistake it will be none of his. He will certainly have the support of the Democrats whether he and his party part horses or not.

Greatly in Demand.

Nothing is more in demand than a medicine which meets modern requirements for a blood and system cleanser, such as Dr. King's New Life Pills. They are just what you need to cure stomach and liver troubles. Try them. At R. R. BELLAMY'S drug store; 25c, guaranteed. †

PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S SON.

A dispatch was sent from Cleveland, Ohio, on the 10th instant, stating that the friends of James R. Garfield are telling it among each other that he recently declined a Federal district judgeship tendered by President Roosevelt. The dispatch goes on to say that the reasons for the declination are not specifically given, except that Mr. Garfield is very much interested in the investigation of corporations which he is now conducting at Washington as Commissioner of Corporations in the Department of Commerce and Labor.

That is reason enough. Mr. Garfield, who is the son of the lamented President James A. Garfield, one of the brainiest men of his day, has ambitions and he can better promote them in the work he now has in hand. It is said that he is an able lawyer and ambitious young man with every prospect of gaining a national reputation if not attaining the eminence of his father.

PISTOL TOTERS.

Says the Richmond Times-Dispatch: "The North Carolina Legislature, now in session, is wrestling with the pocket pistol problem. The proposition now pending is to make pistol toting a felony."

This ought to bring the blush to judges who have almost invariably let off "pistol toters" and even those who have committed deadly assault, with judgment suspended upon payment of costs. The people's representatives at Raleigh regard more seriously than the judges the evil consequence of carrying concealed weapons.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— Richmond Times-Dispatch:—The Rev. Sam Small has assumed editorial charge of the Evening Journal, of Brunswick, Ga., and he is making it quite a lively paper.

—— Senator Hopkins may be disappointed that there is no negro in Congress, but he may find satisfaction in knowing there was one in the electoral college from Pennsylvania.—Washington Post.

—— It will be the finest inauguration of the finest, and there will be such marching and counter-marching and high jinks as man, proud man, drest in a little brief authority, is fain to indulge.—Baltimore Sun.

—— Judging by the number of measures recommended by the President which will not be considered at this session, it would seem as though Mr. Roosevelt ought to have saved his last message for the next Congress.—New York World.

—— A few decades ago the position of a United States Senator was looked upon as so dignified and exalted a position that it protected the incumbent even from reproach. Many Senators have shown political bias and judgment, but the number has been very small. In recent years, however, the Senate seems to be falling somewhat in the estimation of the people. A man is no longer considered great and honorable merely because he is a Senator. His position simply gives him a fine opportunity to prove himself as such, and in some cases the most has not been made of this opportunity.—Kansas City Journal.

—— Word comes from St. Louis that Senator-elect Neidringhaus is a jolly good fellow, with money galore and an ambitious wife, who will prove a comely addition to the list of Senatorial dames at the gay capital of the nation. We shall have to get use to Neidringhaus, undoubtedly, but his name, his politics and all the known background of the man are not of the Missouri pattern. There is no hint of Benton or Vest in the makeup of the man, and no smell of Folk upon his garments. The times change, and the manners.—Philadelphia Record.

— Tarboro Southerner: A report became current Monday that W. L. Bridgers, Mayor of Princeville, was insane. Inquiry showed that he has been acting most strangely. Saturday night he went up in the attic over the room he sleeps in, and would not come down, although numbers of his friends made every effort to persuade him to do so. He had provided himself with a revolver, and said he had gone up there because the white caps were after him, and he intended to kill the first one that put his head above the loft floor. The commissioners of the town Monday held a meeting and decided that he was not for the present capable of discharging the duties of mayor, so they designated Rev. Mr. Everett to act as mayor pro tem. Since Bridgers has been mayor he has endeavored strenuously to have the law observed, and this has brought down upon him the hostility of those who opposed any reform in that town. Charges and threats have been made repeatedly against him, it is said, and it is believed that the strain has been too much for him. It will be remembered that the constable elected last May by the reform forces over there resigned after serving a month or two, and it is generally believed that the pressure brought by the opposition by the way of threats was the real cause of his resignation. However all this may be, the mayor of Princeville still fears the imaginary white caps, and it is with the utmost difficulty he can be induced to come down from his loft to even eat or warm himself.

— At Winston-Salem on Wednesday afternoon Mr. William A. Pegram, aged sixty years and candidate for Governor on the Socialist ticket at the last election, was united in marriage to Miss Amanda Craver, of Winston. The blooming bride is just twenty-five.

— A correspondent writes: The Evening Post, Salisbury's new afternoon paper, made its first appearance Monday, and because of its bright, newsy appearance is rapidly gaining a large circulation in and around Salisbury. Mr. Jno. M. Julian, formerly with the Salisburp Sun and later with newly organized Sun Publishing Company, is editor of the Post which is already a popular publication.

— Governor Aycock has pardoned Rice, who, with two brothers named Murray, was convicted of murdering a man named Rice in Madison county and sentenced to ten years imprisonment. He commutes to two years the 18 year sentences of the Murrays. The case was tried in Buncombe The Murrays are of a prominent family. The Governor thought their punishment excessive and the conviction of Rice improper.

— At Advance, Davie county, on Tuesday night, Bob Williams shot and killed Lewis Laird. Both parties are white and married and are about 35 years old. The trouble occurred at the home of Williams. It appears that Laird went there for the purpose of creating a disturbance. He had a pistol and fired twice at Williams, but both balls went wide of the mark. Williams, in order to save his life, grasped his rifle, which was near at hand, and fired upon his antagonist, the ball taking effect in the head just above one eye. Laird fell and died without uttering a word. Williams was arrested, carried to Mocksville and committed to jail, but was taken back to Advance Wennasday afternoon for a preliminary hearing before a magistrate.

— A Salisbury special on Wednesday says: Capt. E. B. C. Hambley of this city, manager of the Whitney Reduction Company, of New York, says an immense contract has just been awarded J. A. Gillespie & Co., also of New York, for the construction of a huge dam at the Yadkin river across the noted "Narrows" situated about 18 miles from Salisbury. The work will also include cutting a large canal on the same premises. No less than $1,700,000 are involved in the contract and much more will be expended in the development of the power plant at the Narrows. About two years will be required for the completion of the contract after which the Whitney Company will be prepared to furnish electricity and power of various kinds to all cities and towns within eighty miles of this place.

— Raleigh News and Observer, Jan. 12: The members of the Governor's staff and the State officials met at 10:30 yesterday morning in the office of Gov. Aycock, to present to him as parting gifts an elegant set of rose-patterned silver, from the staff, and a most exquisite monogramed gold watch from the officers of the State, elective and appointive. Adjutant General Royster, in presenting the silver, made a most feeling address in which he expressed to Governor Aycock the regard and esteem in which he is held by the State Guard. The Governor responded feelingly, with references to the members of his staff, saying that he considered them not as in anywise subordinates but as brotherly members of a large family. In presenting the watch, Auditor Dixon started to make a speech, but failed at the moment when he came to part with the Governor. "Here," said he, "take this thing; we give it to you not because you are Charles Aycock, and we love you." The Governor, with the watch in his hand, started to reply. Dr. Dixon waived him off: "Stop," said he, his voice choking with emotion, "nothing from you, sir!" A large oil portrait of the Governor, given by Lieutenant Governor Winston, Judge Walter Neal, Hon. Hugh Chatham, General Royster and Col. Pearsall to Mrs. Aycock was represented to the Governor by reason of sickness at the mansion. Gov. Winston made the presentation speech, and the Governor responded gracefully on behalf of Mrs. Aycock. The portrait was painted by Randall.

AGAIN THE PILOTS.

Letter of Captain Gibbs Analyzed Second Time—An Argument.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 9, 1905.

To the Citizens of Wilmington:

GENTLEMEN: The letter of Capt. Z. Gibbs, in the STAR of the 8th, is an ingenious document. A few points are worth investigation. Was the communication inspired? It shows wonderful tact, ability, knowledge of the situation, and power of special pleading, for the Captain of a small coasting schooner.

Why should he depreciate the heroic and successful efforts of the United States life saving crews, whose vocation is as daring and noble and self-sacrificing as that of any known. These men have no hope of reward other than their regular wages. Why should they give the glory to two sea-going tugs, which took little risk, arrived after the wreck occurred, after most of the danger was over, and went in their regular line of business for the purpose of making "salvage"? You can recall similar cases where these tugs have arrived in time to be of real service and then judge if their rewards have not been ample and often excessive.

If it were true that ship masters and owners preferred the exorbitant and inefficient monopoly, Wilmington would be one of the largest Cities in the South. Trade and development go along lines of smallest resistance, first, and then along lines of greatest encouragement. Ship owners and captains do not prefer the present custom, and the evidence of this is overwhelming. If the public knew and realized the facts the "system" would quickly disappear.

The wreck of this schooner is a reproach to the pilots rather than a credit. They interest themselves little in the safety of the shipping beyond the Cape Fear Bar. If there were competition, pilots would have found the "Emma Middleton" far out to sea and cared for her. As it was she had to blunder along by herself in thunder and darkness and go on a breaker swept shoal because the law does not compel the pilots to protect shipping until much danger has been passed.

As a matter of fact the crews of the tugs did not go out to the "Middleton" as pilots. They went as tug-boat men and wreckers. If the tugs had been successful in the purpose for which they visited the wreck their salvage would have been large.

To a layman it would seem that the danger was about past when the life saving crew out in the open sea could accept a tow from the tugs. It is doubtful if a life boat is as safe in a heavy sea when towed behind a tug as it is when under control of brave and skilled oarsmen who can regulate the speed and direct the course of the boat so as to ride the waves to the best advantage.

Just wherein did the "Striking advantage of Combined Tug and Pilotage service at Cape Fear Bar" show in this case? The vessel was lost possibly through bad judgment and neglect. The crew was saved by the heroic efforts of the men in the life saving service. The tugs with their Pilotage trust representatives seem to have done nothing more than give a lift to the brave life saving crew, as any passing tug would have done, for which service Capt. Gibbs rewards them with a ridiculous sympathy prescription.

The pilots are playing for sympathy of the public and have used this over and over again to perpetrate their blighting hold upon the commerce of this port. Every man, woman and child in Wilmington who would be benefited by the growth and progress of Wilmington is injured by the compulsory feature of this law.

The tugs can certainly be complimented on towing into port an interesting specimen of a "sea-lawyer" when they brought Capt. Gibbs over the bar.

Respectfully,

"PROTEST."

FAMILY CARES.

This Information May Be of Value to Many a Parent in Wilmington.

When there is added to the many cares inseparable from the rearing of children that affliction of weakness of the kidneys and auxiliary organs, the mother's lot is far from a happy one. This condition can be quickly changed and absolutely cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. When this is known the parent's burden will be lighter and her home happier.

J. T. Ebert, of 515 South 6th street, mattress maker, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family. My little girl complained of severe pains in the small of her back, and the kidney secretions were dark and full of brickdust sediment. We were very much worried about her and when I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I went up to R. R. Bellamy's drug store and got a box and gave them to her. Since using them she had improved wonderfully and is a different child. Her kidney secretions cleared up, she does not complain of her back, and in fact Doan's Kidney Pills gave her new life. We are very much pleased with them and you can use my name and welcome."

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The cotton market developed a weaker tone today under local bear pressure and liquidation with final prices at about the lowest of the session. The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of of two points, the slight changes being in line with the Liverpool cables, which reflected a disposition on the part of the English trade to merely follow American fluctuations, and await developments. German operators who have recently been liberal buyers, appeared to be supporting the market again at the opening and offerings of a general character were curtailed by the reports of continued firmness among interior holders. Prices following the call worked up about six points above the opening figures. Leading room brokers had big selling orders on a scale up, however, and before the session was an hour old, prices had lost the early advance. After ruling irregular during the late forenoon with the South selling moderately and the local trade working both ways, pressure became more pronounced. It looked as if some of the bear leaders were trying to force out the recently accumulated long interest and in the afternoon the market had a sharp break with May selling about 20 points down from the best point of the morning and some fourteen points below the closing prices of yesterday. The close was steadied by room covering but at a net loss of 10 at 17 points. Sales futures were estimated at 275,000 bales.

Port receipts for the day were moderate and interior receipts were again small, while exports were full.

HE COULD PREACH.

At First He Thought He Couldn't, but Changed His Opinion.

In the early days of Methodism in the west a circuit rider, if he had a large field to cover, was sometimes permitted to have a colleague, who was frequently a young minister, just beginning to preach. The Rev. John Thompson was a circuit rider in a somewhat thinly settled portion of central Illinois more than fifty years ago. The colleague assigned to him was Brother James Smith, an excellent young man, but with very little experience as a preacher.

One Sunday Mr. Thompson had an appointment at a small meeting house in the country, but having a severe cold he asked his young assistant to go along with him and preach the sermon, and the latter, as in duty bound, obeyed orders.

Brother Smith had never undertaken to preach in the presence of his more experienced colaborer, and when, after the opening services, he rose and gave out his text he was visibly embarrassed.

He stammered through a few sentences, hesitated, made another attempt and came to a dead stop.

"What's the use, brethren?" he said, sitting down. "I can't preach!"

Brother Thompson saw that the case was one in which heroic measures were necessary.

"Young man," he whispered sternly in his ear, "you get up again and preach that sermon or I'll take you out in the grove after this meeting is over and give you a hard spanking, as sure as your name is Smith!"

An electric shock could not have operated quicker. Brother Smith rose to his feet again, his hesitation all gone, and in ringing tones he preached a sermon that is still remembered by aged survivors of that old time congregation as the most fervid and eloquent discourse they ever heard so young a man deliver.—Youth's Companion.

THE ORIFLAMB.

A Standard That Has Played a Conspicuous Part In History.

The Carlovingian standard was really no other than the oriflamb, which has played so conspicuous a part in French history, but was not formally adopted until 1082, in the reign of Philip I. It consisted of a red or crimson flag, mounted on a gilded staff, the flag being cut into three "vandykes," to represent "tongues of fire," with a silken tassel between each.

The old romance writers pretended that the infidel was blinded by merely looking upon it. In the "Roman de Garin" the Saracens are made to exclaim, "If we only see it, we shall be dead men," and Froissart affirms that as soon as it was unfurled at Rosbecque the fog vanished from the French line of battle, leaving their enemies still shrouded in darkness.

Thus red, the color which the church has consecrated to her martyrs, became in its turn the color of the French kings. They wore it on their coats of arms through the whole period of the crusades and as late as the closing decade of the fourteenth century were still faithful to this "glorious blazon."

The famous Du Guesclin, fighting against the English in Poitou, wore the red cross, while his adversaries wore the white. But after the great defeat at Agincourt in 1415 the French kings abandoned the oriflamb, because it had been assumed by Henry V. and his successors, and adopted white as a national color when England had discarded it. This is a curious but little known historical fact.—All the Year Round.

Teeth as Sentinels.

"When thou sittest to eat with a ruler consider diligently him that is before thee," says the Hebrew proverb, warning a king's guest to regulate his appetite by his host's temper. Boswell, Dr. Johnson's biographer, gives in his notebook a modern paraphrase of the old Jewish proverb: "I said of a rich man who entertained us luxuriously that, although he was exceedingly ridiculous, we restrained ourselves from talking of him as we might do lest we should lose his feasts. 'He makes our teeth sentinels on our tongues,' said I."

An Endless Chain.

"Isn't that the same suit you had last year, Uncle Peter?" the agent for sewing machines inquired.

The postmaster, storekeeper, town clerk and iceman looked at him in silence for a moment. "Yes, sir," he said at last in a chilly tone. "It is the same suit I had last year, and it is the same suit you asked me last year if it wasn't the same suit I had the year before. Now, have you got any more questions to ask, or will they hold over till next season?"

Men and Gossip.

"Why do men never gossip?" asked the woman who regards her husband as a great and good man.

"Because," answered Miss Cayenne, "they are too indolent. They insist on sending their wives out to get the news for them."—Washington Star.

Two Men.

"That fellow yonder"—

"What of him?"

"Just rich enough to be miserable. But the fellow standing near him is"—

"What?"

Short.

"Why does Mr. Spatt wear such short trousers?"

"Because they fit him. I asked him for a small loan, and he said he was so short his corns made his head ache."—London Tit-Bits.

A Grim Tragedy

is daily enacted in thousands of homes as death claims, in each one, another victim of consumption or pneumonia. But when coughs and colds are properly treated the tragedy is averted. F. G. Hunley, of Oaklandon, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption, and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and to-day she is well and strong." It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. STAINED GLASS WORK.

An Art In Which Methods Have Not Changed Much In Centuries.

The twentieth century American stained glass worker follows without important variation the simple methods of the French monk of eight centuries ago. The first requisite is the design. The artist makes a small water color sketch to show the general design and color scheme, accompanying it with detailed studies. From this two large drawings or cartoons are made, the exact size of the desired window. One cartoon shows where the leads will be placed—the thin strips of lead, hollowed on both sides and looking in a transverse section like the letter H, which form the framework to bind the pieces of glass together. Another drawing gives the size and shape of each piece of glass. This cartoon is cut into its component pieces by a pair (or triplet) of three bladed scissors, which leave between their parallel blades a space sufficient for the leads. These cut out patterns are put together again on a large glass easel, to which they are attached by wax, and the spaces between are blacked in to give the effect of the leads.

The easel is then placed against a window where the light can stream through it. The artist or his substitute replaces each paper pattern on the easel by a piece of glass of exactly the same size, cut from a sheet of glass of the color called for by the color sketch. The sketch is not followed exactly; experiment with the actual glass will suggest improvements. To a greater or less extent this stained glass is supplemented by painted glass, on which the colors are fired as in china painting. When all the pieces have been cut they are transferred to the "leading" drawing, the flexible leads are twisted into shape and soldered at the joints and a special cement applied to make the whole water tight. The window is now complete, ready to be put in position, where it is made secure by copper wires fastened to the transverse bars of iron.—Booklovers' Magazine.

Mark Antony's Mistake.

At a performance of "Julius Cæsar" at Hurst college, England, some time ago, Mark Antony made a mistake when the dead body of Cæsar was brought in. He apostrophized the fallen hero with impassioned eloquence, and the audience felt acutely for the poor citizens, who were all presumably horror struck and overcome with grief, when Antony gently but firmly grasped, as he thought, the face cloth and slowly, very slowly, began to draw it back. Just then an excited whisper came from the other end of the corpse, "This end, you fool!" But Antony was inexorably wrapped in grief. He persevered and disclosed to the intently gazing audience Julius Cæsar's boots.

Clever Smuggling Trick.

Smuggling from Geneva into France used to be carried on at a great rate. Alexandre Dumas tells how Beaute, a famous watchmaker of that city renowned for his skill in smuggling, got the better of the Count de Saint Cricq, King Louis Philippe's director of customs, who was traveling as a detective. The count bought 80,000 francs' worth of jewelry on condition that it should be delivered free of duty, in Paris. When he went up to his bedroom on arriving at the French capital he found his purchases on the dressing table. Beaute had bribed the count's valet to stow them away among his luggage.

Hard on the Doctor.

Weel, Tam, are ye gaun hame wi' your work?" was the invariable greeting of a doctor to a tailor of his acquaintance when he met him carrying a bundle. Once the tailor saw the doctor walking in a funeral procession. "Weel, doctor, are ye gaun hame wi' your work?" he asked.—From Reminiscences," by Sir Archibald Geikie.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs—which cause it, with Cantharides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

The Morning Star.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 13.

THE SMOOT CASE STILL BEING HEARD.

Denied That Mormon Influence Controls Idaho—Few Polygamists in State. Plural Marriages Stopped.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Nearly the entire day in the Smoot investigation was devoted to a continuation of testimony relating to political conditions in Idaho. Frank Martin and F. H. Holzheimer, prominent Idaho Democrats, testified that a majority of the State opposed an "unnecessary attack" on the Mormon church, which they said was the effect of the anti-polygamy plank of the party's State platform. James H. Grady, chairman of the Republican State Committee, told of taking advantage of the Democratic charges in order to get votes for the Republican ticket. He charged also that the Democrats traded off Judge Parker, the Democratic candidate for President, for votes for former Senator Heitfield, the Democratic candidate for Governor.

Just before the adjournment was taken until to-morrow J. W. N. White Ostion, of Provo, Utah, was called to the stand and an examination begun in relation to political conditions in Utah.

Mr. Holzheimer said there had been no plural marriages in Idaho since the manifesto. He said all young Mormons were opposed to polygamy; that the practice of polygamy in Idaho is only in isolated cases; that there had been a few cases where children have been born in plural families since the manifesto, but there are not more than twenty or thirty plural families in the whole State and that the church did not interfere in politics.

Mr. Martin said he never had known of any instance of Mormon interference in the politics of Idaho. He said he had heard it charged that Mormon influence had defeated former Governor Morrison for renomination but he believed eighty per cent. of the people did not credit the charge. The witness expressed the opinion that it was an announcement by Senator DuBois that he intended to push the Smoot investigation that provoked the Mormon controversy of the last campaign.

Mr. Martin volunteered the statement that personally he favored prosecuting those who continued polygamous cohabitation but the majority of gentiles believed the best way was to "let the old fellows die off."

Mr. Brady said that he had made a careful investigation of the number of polygamists in Idaho and to the best of his information there were only 56. He said that Mormon precincts in which Mormon polygamists campaigned showed a falling off in the Republican vote. This information was given to show that the younger Mormons were opposed to polygamy.

"It is all bosh," said the witness "to say that Mormons get everything they want in Idaho—at least if they do, they want very little."

The committee adjourned until to-morrow.

BRODIE L. DUKE AFFAIR.

Order for Jury to Take Testimony Jan. 19th—The Habeas Corpus.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Justice Gaynor, of the Supreme Court, to day appointed Isaac Franklin Russell, of the New York Law University, Edward W. Candee and Dr. Thomas L. Fogarty, of Brooklyn, to act as a commission to summon a jury and take testimony on January 19th concerning the sanity of Broadie L. Duke, now confined in a sanitorium at Flushing, Long Island. The commission was appointed in response to a petition presented to Justice Gaynor this afternoon by Mr. Unger, of the law firm of Levy & Unger, in behalf of Mrs. Duke and her husband.

Mrs. Duke's petition alleges that Duke's commitment to the sanitarium by Justice Truax was without previous notification to herself or husband, and that the patient is deprived of his liberty without due process of law.

To-morrow before Justice Gaynor in Brooklyn, Brodie L. Duke will be taken to court on a writ of habeas corpus signed yesterday by that justice.

Mr. Ferguson said that congressional assistance would be asked to remedy some of the evils that are now complained of. Jesse F. Orton, of Grand Rapids, Mich, discussed the legal phases of the private car line proposition. John W. Low, of Chicago, read a paper prepared by Alfred Rush, of Detroit, on standard weights. William I. McCracken, of Pittsburg, read a paper on uniform commissions and S. S. Darmon, of Philadelphia, on one freight rate discrimination.

There was an early adjournment of the afternoon session so that the delegates, their wives and families might attend a fish dinner at Westend.

SWAYNE CORRUPT AND TYRANICAL.

SOME SHARP PASSAGES.

Littlefield, of Maine, Defends the Carpet-bagger by Reflecting on Lamar, of Florida, Who Denounces Certain Statement as Malicious.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The House of Representatives to-day devoted its entire session to discussion of the impeachment charges against Judge Charles Swayne, of the Northern district of Florida. A dramatic incident occurred when Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, called on Mr. Lamar, of Florida, who filed the charges against the judge, to admit or repudiate an alleged interview which the former claimed tended to incite the people to commit an act of violence against Judge Swayne. Mr. Lamar admitted giving an interview, but emphatically denied any suggestion from him that could be construed into advising assassination or murder. He said that although Judge Swayne was known to be the most lawless man in Florida, he had remained secure from bodily harm.

Mr. Palmer, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee of seven appointed by the Speaker to prepare the case against Judge Swayne, explained that the majority of the committee had reached their conclusions after most painstaking deliberation, and it remained for the House itself to take such further action in the case as it might deem proper.

Mr. Palmer defined what constituted impeachable offences and said a judge could be impeached for any misbehavior. He then gave a resume of the twelve articles of impeachment, which his committee had brought in.

Replying to a question by Mr. Cockran, of New York, as to whether any litigant was oppressed by the alleged failure of Judge Swayne to acquire a legal residence in his district, Mr. Palmer said the evidence abounded in such cases. He discussed at length the statute governing contempt cases and said it was "so plain that a wayfaring man or a fool may not err therein. "That," he said, "was where this man has sinned."

Mr. Palmer evoked loud applause when raising his voice, he declared his intention of introducing at the present session a bill which would give every man punished for contempt the right to appeal to some higher court.

Mr. Palmer reviewed the contempt cases of Belden and Davis, saying that Judge Swayne claimed that the punishment of the two men was moderate.

"I hope," he added, "God will be good to the men that Judge Swayne imposes a severe sentence upon."

Referring to the real estate transaction of Judge Swayne in Pensacola, Mr. Palmer said that no other judge on earth would have done such a thing. Judge Swayne's court, he said, was reeking with bankruptcy, scandals and suicides, and he did not believe the judge had a friend in his district.

Taking up statements which have appeared in the newspapers, that other judges than Judge Swayne had charged $10 a day for expenses, Mr. Palmer vehemently declared that such statements were a slander on the judiciary of the United States. "There is not," he said, "a syllable of testimony in this record or anywhere on earth that any judge ever did this thing but Judge Swayne." With much earnestness, he added that he made the statement on his responsibility as a member of the House. "We are trying this case on the record," he said, "and not on newspaper reports, thank God." To refuse to support the charges, Mr. Palmer exclaimed, would make the members of the House the laughing stock of the United States.

Stating that he rose not for the purpose of opposing or advocating any of the articles of impeachment, Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, said he felt it his duty to give to the House what the record showed and what it did not show. He then analyzed the evidence in the case in all its phases and said that none of the majority of the committee except the sub committee, had read the report when they voted for impeachment. He mentioned that fact, he said, in order that the House might appreciate the true significance of the action of the committe.

Turning his attention to Mr. Lamar, of Florida, who filed the original charges, Mr. Littlefield called upon him to admit or deny an alleged interview published in the Metropolis of Jacksonville, Fla., on March 29, 1904, re-printed from the Atlanta Constitution, which did violence to Mr. Lamar's reputation as a gentleman and as an honorable member of the House. Mr. Littlefield quoted from the interview, in which Mr. Lamar is alleged to have said that the people of Florida had stood Judge Swayne just about as long as they could, and that he was going to tell Congress that if some action was not taken to relieve the people of Florida, Judge Swayne's life would be in danger.

Mr. Lamar said that any language impuling to him the statement that Judge Swayne's life was in danger, was absolutely incorrect, but he emphasized the fact that he did say that if the proceedings in the House, after a full inquiry, terminated in nothing, it would be because the House did not understand the conditions in Florida; that he looked upon Judge Swayne "as utterly corrupt and utterly tyrannical and the most lawless man in Florida." Then replying directly to the question if he had suggested violence to Judge Swayne, Mr. Lamar declared that he stated in the interview "that if nothing appealed to Judge Swayne, neither law nor humanity in his own lawless career, then I would point out to him the fact that his arbitrary and tyrannical action might result in some ill-ordered brain or some revengeful brain that suffered at his hands, inflicting violence upon him."

The most intense interest was exhibited in this phase of the debate. Almost every seat on the floor was quickly taken and members leaned forward to catch every word.

Continuing his remarks, Mr. Littlefield said it grieved him profoundly that a member of the House had preached "incitement to assassination and murder."

"I deny any suggestion of violence to Judge Swayne," exclaimed Mr. Lamar, who further said that "the fact that he had remained in my State so long secure in his lawless career is evidence of that."

To compare his interview referred to with the present impeachment proceedings, Mr. Lamar said was trivial.

"Do you think," interjected Mr. Robinson, of Arkansas, addressing Mr. Littlefield, "after the statement by the gentleman from Florida, that it justified assassination?"

"I protest here and now," exclaimed Mr. Littlefield, "that no language put into the public prints and read by the common people and which urges assassination or incitement to murder, is trivial in its character."

Mr. Lamar was promptly on his feet and declared that while he did not think Mr. Littlefield intentionally charged him with inciting murder, Mr. Littlefield certainly had almost blindly misapprehended what really was said. If, said Mr. Lamar, any one used his language to impute in the interview that he suggested violence to Judge Swayne he would denounce it as a malicious falsehood.

IN THE SENATE.

The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was to-day read at length in the Senate and most of the committee amendments were acted upon. There was considerable discussion of the civil service question and of the provision for any investigation of foreign trade conditions by the Department of Commerce.

The bill for the encouragement of the merchant marine was reported to the Senate and Mr. Bailey made the point that the commission had pledged to report in favor of discriminating duties and not in favor of ship subsidies. The suggestion was combatted by Senators Gallinger and Lodge, who were members of the commission. Mr. Bailey read from the Congressional Record a colloquy between himself and Mr. Frye, from which it appeared that Mr. Bailey had withdrawn his objection to the bill because Mr. Frye expressed the opinion that the work of the committee would result in "a provision for discriminating duties."

Mr. Lodge said that the statement by Mr. Frye was merely the expression of a personal opinion and in no sense binding.

The debate developed the fact that Mr. Frye had expressed the intention of appointing Mr. Lodge, who was the author of a bill for discriminating duties, on the commission, and Mr. Bailey expressed surprise that the Massachusetts gentleman should have found it necessary to change his mind on the subject. He meant no reflection on either Mr. Lodge or Mr. Frye, he said, but he added "If I were uncharitable I might suggest that one thing which caused a change of mind on the part of the Senator from Massachusetts was the conclusion of the Commission to recommend a bounty for the deep sea fisheries along the Massachusetts coast."

Mr. Lodge said that his change of mind in discriminating duties had been arrived at long before the bounty was decided upon. The Senate adjourned until to-morrow.

TREMENDOUS ARMY FACES KUROPATKIN.

Port Arthur Sends 32,000 Reinforcements, Giving Japanese Army of 388,000 at Mukden—Other War News.

By Cable to the Morning Star

BERLIN, January 12.—The Neuste Nachrichten to-day published a dispatch from Mukden saying that according to Russian intelligence the Japanese army facing Gen. Kuropatkin's forces, has been reinforced by 368 siege guns recently used in the investment of Port Arthur and also by 32,000 infantry, making a total of 388,000 men with 1,345 guns.

TROPHIES AT PORT ARTHUR.

TOKIO, January 12.—General Nogi reports that the Japanese captured at Port Arthur 546 guns, 82,607 shells, 30,000 kilos of powder and 2,266,800 rounds of rifle ammunition.

The Japanese achievement at Port Arthur is more remarkable in the light of further investigations. The original Russian strength is now estimated to have been almost 50,000 men. It is announced at the army headquarters that in addition to the prisoners already reported about 13,000 wounded combatants will eventually be brought to Japan. General Nogi's headquarters staff at Port Arthur are at present devoting their energies to dispatching the prisoners to Japan, placing the wounded in hospitals and clearing the way for a thorough investigation of the spoils of war. Confused reports reach Tokio of the condition of the city buildings.

Sixteen survivors of the third detachment of Japanese who attempted to block the entrance of Port Arthur by sinking stone laden steamers in the channel are expected to arrive at Sasbo to-day. The fate of their seventy companions is unknown.

GENERAL STOESSEL.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 12.—The war office explains that the reason for Lieutenant General Stoessel's giving his parole and returning to Russia instead of remaining at the head of the heroic troops who formed the garrison of Port Arthur and sharing their fate as prisoners of war in Japan, is that it is incumbent upon him to bring a detailed report of the defense of the fortress to the Emperor. Rear Admiral Dochlinsky will bring the naval report.

The arrangements for General Stoessel's route home are not completed. At the war office it is said that the general will undoubtedly come straight to St. Petersburg, his first duty being to report to the Emperor. As soon as his route through Russia is determined upon preparations will be made to give him a fitting reception.

STOESSEL IN JAPAN.

NAGASAKI, Jan. 12, 8 P. M.—The steamers Kaga and Sunuki have arrived here with 1,600 Russian prisoners of war and fifty officers. All the prisoners have been quartered at Inase, a village nearby, where has also been prepared a lodge for General Stoessel, who will arrive next Saturday. The Russian officers are allowed much liberty within the bounds of the town, but they are under police escort. General Stoessel and staff will sail from here for Europe on a French mail steamer January 16th. The Russian prisoners are unfeignedly pleased at the end of the hardship of the siege and the considerate treatment of their victors.

CAVALRY ASSAULTS.

GENERAL OKU'S HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, Jan. 14., 4 p. m. via Fusan'—A small party of Russian cavalry near Hatcheng attempted to cut the railway, but were driven back by the Japanese guard. No details have yet been received. It is the first time the Russians have attempted to use cavalry along the line of communications.

RAILROAD RATES ARE DISCUSSED.

THE QUESTION OF REBATES.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern Railway, and authorized to voice the sentiments of the New York Central, Erie, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Illinois Central, Delaware, Lackawana and Western and other railway companies, spoke vigorously today before the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce against the Cooper Quarles bill or any proposition to authorize the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix railway rates. Mr. Spencer is the first direct and official representative of the railways to be heard by the committee and his testimony is regarded as the key-note of the opposition to rate-fixing by the government.

Mr. Spencer said the inter-state commerce law and the commission had been in operation for eighteen years. Before its operation, the rebate, the secret contract and discretionary devices of various kinds were the rule. Now the reverse is the case. Rates are substantially maintained.

"There is no difference of opinion," continued Mr. Spencer, "between the railroads of the country, Congress and the President on the subject that rebates are wrong. We agree with the language of the President that 'the highways of transportation must be kept open to all on equal terms.' On that basis the railway companies are ready and anxious to aid and co-operate. But I don't think any additional legislation is necessary in order to proceed against that particular class of abuses. If such legislation does appear to Congress to be necessary, the railways of the country will certainly stand, and I have no hesitation in saying so, in co-operating and aid to that end.

Asked the question as to the necessity for the proposed legislation, Mr. Spencer said about ninety per cent. of all the claims or questions of various kinds which have been presented to the Inter-State Commerce Commission during that time have been adjusted without formal hearing and decisions on the part of the commission. "That," he said, "does not indicate either a fight or non-co-operation on the part of the railroads."

Of the remaining ten per cent. of the work of the commission scarcely two per cent. was the subject of the litigation. Of 194 cases decided against the railroads 43 went to litigation, showing acquiescence of the railroads in four-fifths of the decisions of the commission. Of the 43 cases 25 related to rates and in twenty-two of these the decisions were reversed by the courts.

Referring to the personnel of the commission, Mr. Spencer expressed the confidence of the railway world in it and said it was justly worthy of the respect of the country. There was but one feature of the Quarles-Cooper bill which he wished to discuss specifically, that was the portion conferring power on the commission to substitute a rate for one complained of as unreasonable, after due hearing, said rate to remain in effect subject to change only by the commission or by the courts on appeal by the railways.

The reasons advanced for the necessity of this power were enumerated by Mr. Spencer as, first it is merely restoring a power which the commission had for ten years exercised. This power, Mr. Spencer denied had ever legally existed and he reviewed the cases and litigation which led to the decision of the courts prohibiting the exercise of the power by the commission in 1897. "It is also claimed," he continued, "that this power would be a weapon in the hands of the commission to prevent rebates. But a rate fixed by the commission can be rebated or evaded just as easilly as any other. It has also been claimed, but not officially I believe, that such a power in the hands of the commission would act as a deferrent in the matter of secret rebating and other devices for evading a rate. But the use of that weapon would punish not the evader of the rate but the road which upheld the rate, as its exercise would be to let the rate down to the lower figure, thus working no hardship on the road making the less rate, but punishing the road maintaining the regular rate."

The most important claim in the whole situation Mr. Spencer believed to bet hat such a power would enable the commission to prevent discrimination between localities. This question of adjusting rates between localities, he said, was the most difficult and intricate of all. The present adjustment was the outgrowth of natural competition not only between localities which had and always would exist, but between railroads as well. To disturb this adjustment or to begin its disturbance, he maintained would not only be a task so enormous that no statement could convey a comprehension of it, but would be impossible of satisfactory completion in the hands of a body with authority only to take into consideration the one phase of adjusting rates with reference to their equalification so far as the carrier was concerned, and leaving out the question of competition between localities.

In this problem the price of commodities of every sort would have to be taken into consideration and he instanced the competition between mining centers, agricultural centers, manufacturing centers, etc., as illustrating his meaning. Stability as to prices of commodities could not exist, he maintained. Should such be the case, commerce would become absolute stagnation. Taking the commission's report, Mr. Spencer stated that in the ten years prior to 1901, but 31 cases of discrimination between localities had come before it and only one of these had been sustained by the courts. This indicated to his mind that no new authority need be given on this problem, while if authority should be granted, there would not be a locality which would not immediately bring forth the claim that it was being discriminated against, in order to secure additional advantages if possible.

Taking up the subject of unreasonable rates, Mr. Spencer referred to the statement which had been made to the commitee that rates were thirty-three thousandths of one per cent. higher in 1903 than in 1899, making a total raise of $155,000,000. This he conceded to be true when the gross receipts were taken into consideration. He gave as a reason the increase in the price of commodities of every description and consequently the cost of operation of railways. The net return to the roads had been less than in 1898. It was a singular coincidence also, he mentioned, that the comparison was made with the year 1899, which was the lowest year as to rates in the history of American railroads. Mr. Spencer will continue his testimony to-morrow.

MR. MORTON ON THE RAILROADS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Paul Morton, Secretary of the Navy and formerly vice president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, is the author of an article on the railway rate question which will be published in the Outlook to-morrow.

The Secretary in the article says there are very few complaints against railroad rates per se in the United States, the chief trouble being with "the relation of rates as between markets." He says there are many rates that are too low as there are rates which a court would decide to be too high and that either class of rates may be equally disastrous to communities. He expresses the opinion that Federal supervision of railroads is necessary but adds that regulation and protection should go together.

He says he rather favors the legalization of pools with adequate provision to assure rates being reasonable. As to pending legislation, Mr. Morton favors the continuance of the Inter-State Commerce Commission in substantially its present form, with right of appeal from its decision to a central court of transportation.

RUN ON BANK RESUMED.

Further Scenes Around State Bank in New York Yesterday—One Arrest.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Through the freezing rain last night and a chilly fog early to-day a score of depositors waited at the doors of the State Bank on Grand street to head the line when the run on that bank was resumed today.

When the doors of the bank opened the women were admitted first. There was not nearly as great a crush as yesterday and the crowd was orderly. About 400 people were in line. A truckload of 50,000 silver dollars was brought to the bank early to day and carried through the crowd to the vaults.

The crowd around the bank dwindled away as the day advanced, and President Richards stated that after noon that he believed the run was practically at an end.

The first arrest in connection with the run on the State Bank was made to-day when Joseph Gross was taken into custody on complaint of the bank officials, who claim that he threatened to "create the largest run the bank ever had." They also charge that he told people that "the bank was no good" and advised them to take their money out at once.

In the message of the retiring governor of West Virginia, Albert B. White, yesterday, he states that there is no State debt and there is a cash balance of $663,717 in the treasury. He recommends a constitutional amendment providing that for the year 1907 and thereafter no taxes what ever shall be levied for State school purposes. He urges that railroads should be confined solely and exclusively to the purposes for which they were incorporated and not be engaged in owning lands, mining or manufacturing of any kind, either directly or indirectly.
